CEO COMMENT

As usual, the third quarter results are suppressed by low volumes over the vacation months and gap between semesters, affecting income from all customer segments - Employment education, Vocational University courses, Vocational secondary education as well as corporate skill-up courses.

This year, the negative effect was further amplified by The Swedish Public Employment Service's savings program announced in May. The target to reduce volumes in active employment programs by 11% compared to 2017, has been widely exceeded in the third quarter. Despite the decrease, YrkesAkademin increased its participant volumes in the quarter compared to last year and thus increased its market shares further.

The prolongation of the state budget should have a slightly positive effect on Employment education, balanced by a negative effect on Vocational University courses and municipality sponsored vocational training. However, a new Government, or the Parliament, will most likely change the state budget frames. Even if it is uncertain how a lifelong learning will be funded, the need for competence development in the quickly automatized and skills driven labor market is obvious. YA is well positioned to capture the demand for skills development wherever it occurs.

MARKET AND SALES DEVELOPMENT

The Public Employment Service has so far this year reduced the total number of people enrolled in various active labor market programs - Employment training (AUB), Preparatory education (FUB), Support and matching (STOM) and introduction to work (INAB) - twice as much as the eleven percent foreseen and communicated in May. In September the number of participants in these programs, 33.897, were 38 percent lower the number of participants in 2017.

The largest drop in participants has not been within employment education, but in preparatory courses and support and matching. Still, the total number of participants in employment courses has been reduced by 17% from October 2017 to 2018. In the same period, YrkesAkademin has increased its number of participants by 17%, expanding its market share from 18% to 26%. But still, YA has in Q3 had a lower level of participants than anticipated after the high volumes in the spring. In addition, the growth of participants in the newly started professional Swedish courses has not been in line with predictions due to the savings ambitions of the authority.

Number of people in Employment Education

In parallel, the growth of Vocational University has continued. YA will under the autumn increase its number of courses to more than 30, and is approaching 1000 students, which will be close to twice the level of Q3 2017. In September, income from YH was about 50% higher than in 2017.

The secondary vocational education has also grown, even if the pace of the growth is somewhat unclear due to lack of statistics. YA has grown its number of pupils to around 400, which at the end of the quarter generated 50% higher income than at the end of Q3 in 2017.

In Finland, YA has gained frame agreements in Oulu, Kuusamo, Raahen and Satakunta in addition to the initiated courses. The expected business value of these frame agreements is approximately SEK 5m for 2019.

In the quarter

The cost adaptation program that was initiated to meet the drop in Employment training volumes has been implemented step by step through the autumn. The number of rented trucks and buses has been reduced, excavators have been sold and leased back to enable quick and agile adjustment to changes in participants.

Temporary shut down of eight education sites, in addition to lost contracts in primarily real estate maintenance, has been initiated in dialogue with customers to meet a very low local demand of the offered and contracted educations, especially within professional Swedish, but also in other skills areas. YA is ready to open these educations again, should the demand increase.

The real estate educations have successfully been reduced as the contracts have expired and number of participants has decreased.

In total, cost of staff and consultants has decreased by SEK 4,1m, or 7,4% from Q1 to Q3 and the cost reduction will continue in Q4.

In addition, YA has initiated a staff reduction program. Teaching staff will be reduced to meet the actual demand of education and be agile to further reductions should that be necessary. Management, overhead and administrative staff will be reduced and adjusted to the smaller number of Employment courses participants and growth in Vocational university and secondary courses.

Due to labor laws, the reduction program will start to come into effect in late December and then gradually increase through the first quarter. In full effect, it is estimated to cut staff costs by SEK 15-20m annually, but the actual net effect is dependent of the size of new education starts as well as changes in participant rates in existing courses.

In the quarter, YA won tenders in crane operator education, where contracts have been signed for educations in four regions, covering most of southern Sweden. Since this is the first time the education is held, it is difficult to foresee the volume and income from the courses.

In addition, YA has won authorization for secondary vocational education across the greater Stockholm region, and expanded authorization for TSL educations, as well as smaller courses such as waiter/waitress training in Örebro municipality and introduction to construction in Borlänge municipality.

Last year's average share of participants that were employed three months after an education was 76%. In the quarter, the share was substantially higher due to a large demand for summer substitutes in the YA trades.

In general, the high demand for skilled labor, regardless of background or language perfections continues, which gives the immigrants that have arrived in the last 5-10 years an extraordinary opportunity to get a job and a firm connection to Swedish labor market and society.

The subdued results affected the cash flow negatively in the third quarter. To counter act liquidity challenges, real estate as well as excavators were sold in the third quarter and in the beginning of the fourth quarter. In total, sales of real estate amounted to SEK 3.7m, and an excavator value of SEK 15m was realized.

Events after the third quarter

The cost adjustment program was implemented in the beginning of the fourth quarter, with effects expected in Q1 2019. In addition, income from The Employment Service increased as volumes picked up somewhat after the summer. The number of participants in Employment courses per week increased on average by close to ten percent from the third quarter to the first 8 weeks of Q4. Average weekly income from the Employment Service increased in the same period by 12 percent, due to a somewhat faster increase in the educations with higher price, such as Transport.

Number of participants per week

Q3-Q4 to date

YA lost an existing contract in Garden work education in Örebro for the Employment Service, but has appealed the decision.

In November, YA won 6 of the 10 new real estate contracts. Since YA used to have real estate education in 11 sites, the business value is lower than the previous contracts that have been terminated over the spring and summer. The 10 days appeal period means that the tender may still be appealed and contracts can be signed only after publication of the report.

Despite the improved financial performance during 2018, YA's profitability is subdued by the decrease in market size of employment education. A cost adjustment program is implemented, and the business plan is developed to increase profitability in the new market situation. This entails a review of the existing capital structure, including the corporate bond loan, and Pareto Securities has been engaged as financial adviser to explore available options. More information regarding the process will be announced when available.
